IS YOUR SPONSOR A DICTATOR OR A BUDDY?

by Clancy I., Venice

One of the great problems that face us - when we reach that terrible state when we realize we don't have ALL the answers - is how to use a sponsor. There are many types of sponsorship - ranging from "dictators" to "buddies" - and people who swear by (and at) each.

There are, however, a few good thoughts on how NOT to use a sponsor. If you can avoid these, your chances are bound to improve. They usually fall into types that almost everyone recognizes; listed here are a few of the most common:

The Celebrity-Grabber - This ploy is utilized when hearing a circuit speaker and being swept away by the feeling that you'll be like Him (or Her) if He is your sponsor. This most often winds up a sponsorship in name only... and the name is used when you're telling people that He is your sponsor. Usually people who choose "celebrity" sponsors unconsciously wish to share the reflected glory, not learn how to live; a sponsor whom you never see except at the gum can't ever get close enough to you to...

The Sponsor-Jumper - There are more of these than you'd think. Their modus operandi is to choose a sponsor and keep him (or her) on secret probation until the sponsor disagrees with the baby's preconceived ideas or decision. Their answer is immediate... to get a sponsor who will be more "understanding". They're determined

STUDENTS GIVE LESSON IN LEARNING

by Harlie C., Huntington Beach

The minute I walked into the classroom and looked out at twenty-five upturned faces belonging to an Eighth Grade Personal Communications Class, I knew I wasn't what most of them had expected. I was shaven, clean, wearing a white shirt, with tie and coat. For four weeks the class had been studying alcohol abuse and here in front of them was a real live alcoholic. Where was the straggly beard, blood shot eyes, torn and dirty clothes and brown paper bag?

I began, "My name is Harlie and I'm an Alcoholic. Let me see a show of hands. How

OAKLAND, CALIF, DEALS WITH ALCOHOL FACILITIES PROBLEMS

The A.A. central office in Oakland has sent an important letter to the alcoholism treatment facilities in its area, addressing two recurring problems.

People who have dependencies other than alcohol, but have been referred to A.A., frequently appear at closed meetings. The letter urges professionals to suggest other meetings for these persons, such as Overeaters Anonymous, Narcotics Anonymous, or Gamblers Anonymous.

It is stressed that a desire to stop drinking is essential to A.A. membership, and most of these persons seem not to have that desire. Such people, the letter stated, should be referred to open meetings until they decide they want to stop drinking.

The letter also pointed out that busloads of unexpected people from treatment facilities were flooding meetings and causing an imbalance. It was suggested that the facilities split their groups into smaller units, so these alcoholics could be given the attention appropriate for newcomers. Big groups, it was noted, might be directed to beginners meetings, which can accommodate large numbers. Inviting A.A. members to special events at treatment facilities and requesting A.A. to set up regular meetings at treatment centers were also suggested.

AN ANSWER TO: "WHERE ARE THE ALCOHOL ALCOHOLICS?"

There seems to be so much controversy in A.A. lately about allowing addicts to share A.A. and the way of life which can be obtained through working the A.A. program. I have tried churches, jails (involuntary), and various other means of social reform to stop taking chemicals. None of these methods helped. But I joined A.A. twelve months ago, and since then I have not found it necessary to take a drink or use drugs.

In this day and age, drugs and booze seem to go hand in hand. Drugs are much easier to obtain than they were twenty or thirty years ago. That is one reason why more chemically dependent people are coming to A.A. with a dual problem. As for identifying, well, if all I had in mind was sitting around a table discussing the "good old drug days" then yes, identifying would be a problem. But my Big Book offers me more than that.

A lot of my help when I first came to A.A. was given by members with ten, fifteen, or twenty years sobriety. They said "One day at a time", "Take it Easy", "Ninety meetings in ninety days", "Keep it Simple", "Let go and let God", and last but not least, "call us before you take that first drug or drink." They saved my life. There was no generation gap, nor did they feel I should be set apart from them because I was chemically dependent. They said they had to give it away if they wanted to keep it.

I know now I was fortunate to go to meetings where there were serene, sober alcoholics who really cared. They didn't put me into a caste system so that they might appear superior. (Alcoholics looking down on junkies; junkies looking down on drug store addicts; everyone looking down on glue-sniffers.) Instead they said we all have to pull together. We are dealing with the lives of human beings, and making value judgements on the severity of another's habit is a childish, dangerous game. Taking any mind-altering chemical means taking our lives in our hands. "I did-more-and-worse-than-you-did" kinds of games are better left to children.

My goal in life right now is to stay away from booze and drugs today and to help others who are still suffering. I do it "One day at a time" and work the twelve steps to the best of my ability. I sincerely hope A.A. continues to keep its doors open to me.

Chemically dependent and my preference is alcohol,
John

The average alcoholic is in the mid-thirties with a good job, a good home, and a family. Less than 5% of all alcoholics are found on skid row. 95% are employed or employable.

to have their way, no matter how many sponsors they have to change to get it!

The Debater - This person is a close relative of the Rebel (see below), and is characterized by engaging in debate with every suggestion or direction of the sponsor. While he is convinced he is a keen student of Truth, he usually winds up as just another loud-mouth dummy who sponsors himself.

The Rebel - An almost classic type who ignores the fact his life is in shambles, as he spends his days and nights reinforcing the thought that "nobody is going to tell ME what to do!" He, like the Titanic, looks unstoppable until he hits the iceberg.

The Let-'Em-Guess - This type can't believe his case is anything but different... so different that his sponsor couldn't possibly understand how he REALLY feels. The result is to tell the sponsor nothing except the most mundane, meaningless trivia. He has perfect communication with his sponsor... except where and when it counts.

The Invisible Man - A too-common type of loser, who has a sponsor but doesn't EVER talk to him. This is an especially sad case because when he goes down the tubes he tells himself "but I had a sponsor... why didn't it work for ME?"

There's a little of all of these in every one of us, unfortunately. Our job is to not let any of these deliciously negative attitudes control us on a continuing basis. It will make life a lot better if we don't!

many of you expected me to look like this"? Not a hand.

"How many of you expect to go on to High School". Hands shot up all over the room.

"How many plan College"? Half as many hands.

"How many know what you want to be as an adult"? Ten or twelve hands.

"How many of you plan to be an Alcoholic"? The hands hit the desktop with a thud all over the room.

"Well, I didn't either", I said and after this opening I spent forty-five of the most rewarding minutes I've experienced since becoming a member of Alcoholics Anonymous.

The Teacher had had the foresight to ask each student to write out their questions for the visiting "alcoholic" in advance, anticipating their reluctance when we were face to face.

I looked at the questions and it was my turn for surprise. You wouldn't expect a thirteen year old to ask, "How do you feel today in comparison to the years when you were drinking". Or, "How can I tell for sure that a member of my family is an alcoholic"? And, "How can I help a person that I love"? Deep? You bet!!! And I knew my work was cut out for me.

I took a deep breath and said a short prayer. "Help me answer these kids in as straightforward, simple and complete way as I possibly can". They weren't there to hear a drunk-a-log or to view a real live alcoholic as a freak of nature. They were asking for answers to problems that had already touched their lives regarding alcohol. I thought of my own children at that age and wondered how often they had wanted to turn to someone when they couldn't talk to me and didn't know how to help.

I don't remember everything that was said in those forty-five minutes but I left with the impression that I'd never experienced a more rapt, interested, and inquiring group of any age. It wasn't just me speaking, it was our program in Alcoholics Anonymous. Anyone of us could have done it that day, in that classroom.

A week later I received letters from each and every student, thanking me for sharing with them and with a comment on what had impressed them the most. Again, the depth of those letters reflected vividly the depth of their thinking concerning alcohol and its use.

Two facts became apparent to me from this experience. First, it was driven home to me that as an Alcoholic I am not a member of some estranged, isolated segment of society, segregated because of my disease. I'm more a part of the normal community where alcohol has a growing affect and concern.

Second was the realization that of all the persons in that classroom that day... students, teacher and Principal... I was the prime beneficiary. Guess who walked away the richer for the experience?

31% of those who take their own lives are alcoholic. The suicide rate among alcoholics is 58 times that of the general population.

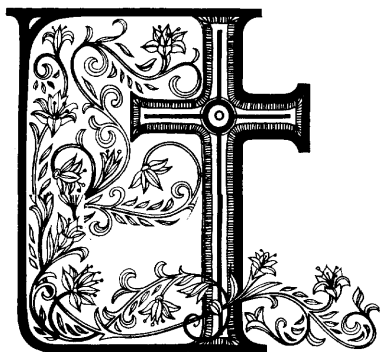

been available to me since, if I but close the switch. The picture always appears, out of the air waves of the universe directed to my particular need. There is no fanfare, no thundering voices. I know, and I know that I know.

To have been given this enlightenment I count as the highest of all experience. To be able to pass it to my fellow sufferer is a trust that I honor in deepest humility. For it is in bringing a message of hope to the still sick one that, I believe, is my best expression of God. And I know now that I express God, as I understand Him, in every act that I do, in every relation that I have with my fellow man.

I know now that as a thinking, living man, my life's work and my reason for being is to express; as the rose does in its bloom, as the peach tree does with its lovely tasty fruit, and to be content with that.

God plugged my mind into the power of the universe and restored my faculties. He healed my body and made me useful. He gave me a choice and helped me in my decision. He made me wanted and made me know that I was wanted and why.

This is the story of the road back for one man. May it be repeated as many times as there are sick and lonely people trying to find the elixir of life in a case of booze.

THE POWER AND ME

by Claude W., Santa Ana

Agnosticism, more than atheism, it would seem, separates us from our spiritual development. Secondly, and this was true in any case, the fear of being ignored, of failure, was a dread fear that stayed my efforts until I lost almost all hope. The disease progressed rapidly and my stubbornness was reduced to shame and despair.

In deepest despair and hopeful yearning I finally approached the establishment of a working relationship with God, whom I called the "Power" at this point.

For me to continue the facade of a belief in my own agnosticism was at this point tantamount to watching a color TV set and wearing by all of the worlds common sense that a picture cannot be sent out over the air waves, in color, that speaks and moves. I really was in no position to shake my fist and defy the thunder. Finally, alone, afraid, and immersed in a despair so deep and a fear so strong it stank, my head bowed, and the light came, at once, to the lonely, scared, sick drunk.

It called on me for decision. A very simple decision. Drink and make that all you do, and you will be taken out of your dilemma soon. Or stop and you will find your way and the sickness in all of its ramifications will be removed. And I believed it. It came like a colored picture on the wave lengths and I could not defy it. The nearly full bottle sat untouched, as it does to this day.

Slowly, but at a rate that I could absorb, the Power revisited me and directed my efforts. One day I was to suddenly realize that I had not thought of a drink, had not wanted a drink, had not been exposed to any experience that I associated a drink as being relief from the trauma or frustration involved for over 8 months. And I wept in sheer gratitude and joy. This remains true today; over 32 years later.

The power and peace of God has always

WIN WITH THE STICKERS

by Joe Q., Laguna Beach

Some of my early sponsors in this program were among the greatest one-line artists I have ever known. With a single phrase, or a raised eyebrow, or some other gimmick, they gave me things that have stood me in good stead over the years. The expression "stick with the winners" is a good example... Sully would tell me that, when I was fairly new, and I would say "Where do I find the winners?"

"Simple", he said, "every Sunday night you go to the X Group, where there are several hundred members. At the beginning of the meeting they always ask for the newcomers to raise their hands, if they care to, and you will see a bunch of hands go up around that hall. Pay no attention to the hands."

"No?" I asked.

"No. At the same time there are going to be some heads swivel around in that hall to see where the newcomers are. Pay attention to the head-swivellers."

"Yes?"

"Yes... and immediately after the meeting, see which of those head-swivellers make a bee-line for those newcomers and stick their hand out in greeting. Follow these people, and do what they do. They are winners, going to losers and offering to teach them how to become winners. And remember, you go as an example, as a teacher, not as a pupil. The only thing that newcomers can teach is new ways to lose, so please, beg them to come to meetings, sit down, shut up and listen... the life they save may be their own."

In this program of attraction, we always read that portion of Chapter 5 which says to the new person... "if you want what we have, and are willing to go to any lengths to get it, THEN you are ready to take certain steps..." Now, first off, they have no idea what we have... so we have to tell them, or show them, what we have. Our primary purpose is to present what we have in such a way that it is attractive enough to them to get them to come back. Then our task is to inform them also by example, of what we mean by ANY length... and this is sometimes an area wherein we fall short, and so we have people who bounce in and out for varying periods of time until they either latch on or go away. That is the horrible part.

Some members of AA almost bend over backwards to allow newcomers to almost orchestrate their own sobriety. "Do it any way you please" could be the most deadly advice a newcomer can hear. If they are having difficulty accepting the program under the terms of "if you want what we have", try the OPPOSITE TACK... "If you DON'T want what YOU'VE got, and are willing to go to any lengths to GET RID OF IT, THEN you are ready to take certain steps." In either case, ANY LENGTHS means don't drink!

Sully's philosophy, simply stated, was "If you will go to at least three AA meetings a week, and make at least one twelfth step call a month, you will be so busy trying to help someone else that you won't have time to worry about yourself." Take a newcomer to three AA meetings... introduce him or her to EVERYONE at the meeting (if you don't know everyone, introduce yourself to those you don't know, and then introduce the newcomer). Make certain the newcomer gets a copy of the book (a dollar down and a dime a day was a common pay scale when I was new), a list of the meeting places, and as many phone numbers as he or she can. If you have a question as to what you tell a newcomer... the answer is at the top of page 93, in Italics... Tell him exactly what happened to you. There is a certain point in each case where the twelfth step call ends, and sponsorship begins. For your continued growth... find that point.

Scientists estimate that only one in roughly 1000 drunk driving trips in the United States are detected, half of these only after an accident has occurred.
